GREETINGS FROM COLONEL PRITZKER

WELCOME TO THE PRITZKER MILITARY MUSEUM & LIBRARY'S 2016 LIBERTY GALA!

Thank you for joining us this evening to celebrate the work of the Museum & Library. It is amazing what this institution accomplishes every year as a place that expands the idea of what a memorial to service members and their families should be. None of these achievements could happen without your generosity.

The design for this year's Gala was inspired by the work of Pulitzer Prize-winning editorial cartoonist Bill Mauldin. Recently, the Museum & Library was selected by Mauldin's family to be the repository for his original comics from over three decades of work, including his time at the Chicago Sun-Times as well as his 1947 book Back Home. Still poignant today, Mauldin's unique blend of wit, humor and an acute eye for truth and accuracy serve as a window into the experiences of people who serve in the military.

As a result of your support, the Museum & Library offers an extensive and ever-growing collection of more than 90,000 items—books, periodicals, letters, journals, rosters, unit histories and more—to the public. With the use of technology, we can share this information far beyond the doors of our Michigan Avenue location. Our books, museum exhibits, podcasts, television programming, oral histories and Veterans Information Center reach nearly a million people around the world each and every year.

This evening we honor the work of Hew Strachan, the 2016 recipient of the Pritzker Military Museum & Library Literature Award for Lifetime Achievement in Military Writing. Hew's body of scholarship and his role in advising modern leaders on the historical trajectories of current events is emblematic of our mission to ensure that the lessons of the past are remembered and studied. As a scholar of the highest order, he is very deserving of this award and recognition.

It is my distinct honor to welcome Senator Elizabeth Dole as the Host Committee Chair for this year's Gala. She and her husband have dedicated their lives to helping veterans and their families, and her exemplary leadership, along with that of the rest of the Host Committee, was instrumental in the success of this event. For this and for the great work that Senator Dole does with the Elizabeth Dole Foundation's Hidden Heroes Campaign, she has my sincerest thanks and admiration.

I want to also thank all of our veteran and active duty military guests as well as their families for their service, and welcome them to this gathering of citizens and soldiers. Thanks are also in order to the Museum & Library's Board of Directors, and to Kenneth Clarke and his entire staff, for all of their efforts in making this evening and the work of the Museum & Library possible. Finally, I want to wish all of our guests a wonderful and, hopefully, enlightening evening.

MAYOR

November 5, 2016

Dear Friends:

As Mayor and on behalf of the City of Chicago, I am pleased to extend my warmest greetings to all those gathered for the Pritzker Military Museum & Library's 2016 Liberty Gala.

Opened in 2003, the Pritzker Military Museum & Library has been an invaluable resource of military history for the American public. With an aim to amass and acquire a great many materials to educate patrons on the role of the citizen soldier in the preservation of democracy, the Pritzker Military Museum & Library serves a great purpose in Chicagoland. Its presence in this city allows Chicagoans and visitors alike unique access to significant parts of our nation's history and context for modern society.

Tonight's event honors the families and the courageous members of America's Armed Forces who protect us every day, here at home and around the world while celebrating the library's continued commitment to house and share these stories. In Chicago, we have the largest JROTC program of any school system in the nation and the only city with every branch of the military represented in our high schools. I am glad that in the Pritzker Military Museum & Library, we have a unique institution dedicated to preserving our soldiers' stories and fostering dialogue about the challenges they face. This state-of-the-art library has quickly become one of Chicago's cultural treasures. I congratulate Sir Hew Strachan on being awarded the 2016 Pritzker Military Museum & Library Literature Award for Lifetime Achievement in Military Writing. I would also like to commend all of those gathered tonight for their continued support of this worthy cause.

On behalf of the people of Chicago, I would like to thank the men and women of the Armed Forces. Your service and commitment to our country is greatly appreciated. I hope all gathered have an enjoyable evening.

Sincerely,

Rahm Emanuel

THE AWARD

THE PRITZKER MILITARY MUSEUM & LIBRARY LITERATURE AWARD FOR LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT IN MILITARY WRITING

The Pritzker Literature Award, which includes a medallion, citation, and $100,000 honorarium, recognizes and honors the contributions of a living author for a significant body of work dedicated to enriching the understanding of military history and affairs. Sponsored by Tawani Foundation, the first award was given in 2007 and has since become one of the most prestigious literary prizes of its kind.

SPONSORED BY

Candidates for the Pritzker Literature Award — whose contributions may include any combination of academic, non-fiction, and fiction writing — are submitted each year by publishers, literary agents, booksellers, and other professional literary organizations. These nominees are then reviewed by a screening committee made up of past winners, community leaders, historians, and authors before a recommendation is made to the Executive Committee, chaired by Museum & Library Founder Jennifer N. Pritzker, which is responsible for the final selection.

The Pritzker Military Museum & Library thanks all those who assisted and guided this process.

2016 RECIPIENT

HEW STRACHAN, 2016 RECIPIENT

Historian, military affairs specialist, and St. Andrews University professor Hew Strachan is a renowned educator, author, and public servant who understands the power of history to expand our understanding of the world we live in and to inform the challenges of our present times.

Author of 14 major publications on topics ranging from World War I to the nature of strategy in modern military conflicts, Strachan is also a respected advisor on contemporary military affairs in the United Kingdom. He is a member of the Chief of Defence Staff's Strategic Advisory Panel, the Defence Academy Advisory Board, and has been a specialist advisor to the Joint Parliamentary Committee on the National Security Strategy. He is a trustee of the Imperial War Museums, a Commonwealth War Graves Commissioner, and a member of First World War Centenary advisory committees in the United Kingdom and Scotland. His services to the Ministry of Defence earned him a knighthood in 2013.

Among his many notable works are bestsellers and award-winners, including World War I: To Arms, the first volume of his three-part, in-progress global history of the Great War and winner of the World War I Historical Association's top book prize and the Society for Military History's Distinguished Book Award, The First World War: A New Illustrated History, a finalist for the British Book Award, The Politics of the British Army, winner of the Westminster Medal, and The Direction of War: Contemporary Strategy in Historical Perspective.

"[T]o say that I chose to write and then chose to write about military history would actually be to get the sequence the wrong way around," Strachan contends. "For me, the military history came first and the writing came second. I became a writer precisely because I wanted to be a military historian." His work — both contemporary and historical — centers on the reciprocal relationship between the military and the people in order to examine how war impacts society, both within nations and on a global scale.

A graduate of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge University, Hew Strachan is Professor of International Relations at Saint Andrews University in Scotland and formerly held positions at Oxford University as Chichele Professor of the History of War and University Academic Fellow All Souls College, the University of Glasgow as Director of the Scottish Centre for War Studies, Cambridge University, and the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst. He was a founding member of Oxford University's Changing Character of War Programme and is a Life Fellow of Corpus Christi College of Cambridge and Emeritus Fellow of All Souls College of Oxford University. Strachan's many notable scholarly accomplishments earned him the honor of fellowship in both the Royal Society of Edinburgh and the Royal Historical Society.

GALA CHAIR

SENATOR ELIZABETH DOLE

A native of Salisbury, North Carolina, Elizabeth Dole graduated with distinction from Duke University as a member of Phi Beta Kappa, earned a law degree from Harvard Law School, and a Master of Arts in Teaching from Harvard University.

She served as Deputy to the Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs during the Nixon Administration, launching a career of dedication to public safety, for which she received the Humanitarian Award from the National Commission Against Drunk Driving and the Lifetime Achievement Award from Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety. She was selected for induction into the Safety and Health Hall of Fame International for her transportation, workplace, and blood safety accomplishments. In the fall of 2012, the National Safety Council presented her their "Flame of Life Award" as one of the century's foremost leaders on safety.

Her resume includes six years as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, and two years as Assistant to President Reagan for Public Liaison. In 1983, she became the first woman to be appointed U.S. Secretary of Transportation, serving five years. She later served as U.S. Secretary of Labor where top priorities included workplace safety and initiatives to help youth-at-risk.

Throughout her career, she has strived to help women and minorities reach their full potential. Elizabeth Dole learned to leverage resources, look for innovative solutions and inspire people to work together to champion breakthrough issues of quantum importance during her years in public service. For example, as Secretary of Transportation, she worked with the late Senator Lautenberg and Senator Lugar to ensure enactment of the 21-year old drinking age. At virtually the same time, she issued a landmark regulation which is credited with widespread enactment of the first state safety belt laws and air bags in cars. These three actions have saved nearly 400,000 lives to date with a projected 20,000 per year going forward.

Elizabeth Dole was only the second woman to serve as president of the American Red Cross since Clara Barton founded the organization in 1881. She totally restructured the world's largest humanitarian organization during her eight years as president, serving as a volunteer in her first year. She led a massive transformation of the way the Red Cross collects, tests and distributes one-half of the nation's blood supply.

Following the Red Cross, she sought the Republican presidential nomination, becoming the first viable female candidate from a major political party. Elected in 2002, Senator Dole became the first woman to represent North Carolina in the United States Senate.

In 2012, she founded Caring for Military Families: The Elizabeth Dole Foundation to raise awareness and support for the 5.5 million young spouses, mothers, fathers and other loved ones caring for our nation's wounded warriors at home.

Senator Dole has received numerous awards. Most recently, she was inducted into the Indiana Wesleyan University Society of World Changers and presented the Military Officers Association of America's Military Family National Service Award. She was honored by Public Counsel with its prestigious William O. Douglas Award, the AARP Andrus Award, and the Former Members of Congress Association's Civic Statesmanship Award. Senator Dole resides in Washington, DC and North Carolina with her beloved husband of forty years, Senator Bob Dole.

BILL MAULDIN

William Henry "Bill" Mauldin (1921–2003) was a Pulitzer Prize winning editorial cartoonist. As an infantryman in World War II, he drew cartoons that depicted military life from the point of view of the average American soldier for the 45th Division's press corps. The popularity of his illustrations resulted in his work appearing in Stars and Stripes and being syndicated in home-front newspapers. After the war, he worked for the St. Louis Dispatch and the Chicago Sun-Times. As a freelancer, he also wrote and illustrated for Life, The Saturday Evening Post, and Sports Illustrated. Willie and Joe, fictional American soldiers created by Mauldin, appear throughout his work.

HOLT ORAL HISTORY PROGRAM

A vital component in the Museum & Library's pursuit of its mission, the Holt Oral History Program is dedicated to collecting, preserving, and sharing the unique Stories of Service of the citizen soldier — not just high ranking officers or recognizable faces from history, but every man and woman who has ever served and sacrificed for our Armed Forces. Launched in 2013 with the generous support of Karen Pritzker, the Seedlings Foundation, and Colette Holt, the program has collected more than 215 oral histories to date —including more than 30 this year so far — by veterans of every American service branch and nearly every modern war.

In 2016 the program saw a shift from World War II and Korea-era participants to Vietnam-era participants due, in part, to the Museum & Library's FACES OF WAR: Documenting the Vietnam War from the Front Lines and Hunting Charlie: Finding the Enemy in the Vietnam War exhibits bringing in that era's service men and women and compelling them to share their own stories.

One of the major highlights this year was the opportunity to interview Edwin J. Fizer who, as one of the Montford Point Marines, was among the first African-American to be permitted to enter the U.S. Marine Corps. Facing prejudices at home while preparing to face hostilities abroad, Mr. Fizer ultimately went with the 52nd Defense Battalion on the island hopping campaigns of the Pacific, using his training in field artillery and anti-aircraft weaponry in places like Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima. Mr. Fizer's service didn't end with his time in the military; after getting out of the Marine Corps, he relocated to Chicago and served with the Chicago Police Department, including with the security detail in charge of assisting Martin Luther King, Jr. For all of his service, Mr. Fizer — along with the other Montford Point Marines — was awarded the Congressional Gold Medal in 2011.

If you know a veteran or active member of the military who would like to share their Story of Service, please contact Oral History Coordinator Thom Webb at (312) 374-9333 or twebb@pritzkermilitary.org.

In addition to this powerful story, the oral history program also recorded Senator Bob Dole and Senator Elizabeth Dole; a 100 year-old World War II service member; an Iwo Jima survivor; a WWII-era POW; a captain who not only survived two B-24 crashes in the Pacific Theater, but went on to work for, and retire, from a major airline as one of the first to fly the 747; ; and a school teacher that switched careers and gave over 22 years of service to the Navy; and finally, a home front story about how a wife dealt with her husband being MIA in Vietnam and finally having the body recovered and returned after 35 years.

Each interview provides a distinctive, highly personal take on the inner-workings of the U.S. Military throughout the years. In several instances, stories that were told to the Pritzker Military Museum & Library were the first time the participants had opened up about their experiences with war. Those experiences become available for all of our community of users to listen to and learn from, either by going to our Museum & Library's website, or by downloading one of our Oral History podcasts.

The importance of oral histories cannot be overstated, and it is through your support that the Holt Oral History Program continues to grow, to enrich our collection, and to capture the attention of the community. With that in mind, the Pritzker Military Museum & Library is excited to offer opportunities for the public to get involved, so that every veteran might have a chance to share his or her story.

Named in honor of Tuskegee Airman Coleman T. Holt, the Holt Oral History Program features state-of-the-art equipment and a dedicated recording space where interviews are conducted by Museum & Library staff, volunteers, fellow veterans, and even family members. Once recorded, these important pieces of military history, ranging in length from 30 minutes to 10 hours or more, are transcribed, catalogued, and made available to the public through the Museum & Library's website and via downloadable podcasts, where they reach thousands of listeners each year.

CHICAGO PUBLIC SCHOOLS JROTC PROGRAM

The Pritzker Military Museum & Library is proud to contribute to the educational enrichment and career development of Chicago Public School's JROTC students; providing unique opportunities for students to learn about and engage with the military on a broader scale beyond JROTC. For the second year in a row, the Pritzker Military Museum & Library hosted its military history academic competition in which five teams researched and presented on pivotal moments in U.S. military history. Through the support of the Tawani Foundation, JROTC cadets were provided the opportunity to visit U.S. service academies and battlefields, as well as travel the beaches of Normandy to learn about the D-Day Invasion in WWII. The Museum & Library has donated thousands of books on military history and affairs to Chicago JROTC schools.

Announcing the latest publication from the Pritzker Military Museum & Library

THE GENERAL: WILLIAM LEVINE,
CITIZEN SOLDIER AND LIBERATOR

Through the accounts written by New York Times best-selling author Alex Kershaw and 20-year veteran Newsweek reporter Richard Ernsberger, we follow General Levine from D-Day to Dachau, from liberation to the Cold War and into postwar-America in Chicago's north suburbs. Based on the William P. Levine archive at the Pritzker Military Museum & Library, his oral history at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, interviews with Levine's family and colleagues and other sources, The General paints a moving portrait of a family man, a business man, a man of faith and a military man who loved his country.

FACES OF WAR

Documenting the Vietnam War from the Front Lines

Armed with their cameras, sound equipment, and light weaponry, the elite photographers and cameramen of the Department of the Army Special Photographic Office (DASPO) captured, in stark detail, the true horrors and humanity of the Vietnam War. Deploying to the front lines aboard Hueys and Air Force C-130s, these special operations teams operated with unlimited access—producing some of the most iconic and important images from the conflict.

The Pritzker Military Museum & Library's latest exhibition, Hunting Charlie: Finding the Enemy in the Vietnam War, explores the United States' enemy in the Vietnam War through rarely seen, original art pieces. This exhibit displays a point-and-counterpoint perspective by pairing North Vietnamese propaganda art with photos, political cartoons and reflections from United States combat veterans.
